

Bulgarian Natural Stone Mosaic collections bring unique artistic and instant glamour to any room.

Mosaics add instant glamour to any room. Their color and texture variations are truly mesmerizing. When confronted with a wall clad in these tiny works of art, one cannot help but glide their fingertips across it. When laid upon the floor, your guests will have to resist the urge to kick off their shoes. Mosaics add instant glamour to any room. Their color and texture variations are amazing.

By enveloping an entire room in a single-toned mosaic you can recreate the serene simplicity of a windswept beach. The sparkle of highly polished stone mosaics strewn across a backsplash and spilling over a countertop will result in the appearance of a gem-encrusted jewel box. Because of the expense involved in using large quantities of mosaic, your budget restrictions may override your desires. Before dismissing your dreams entirely, explore clever ways to incorporate a smaller adaptation of your original design. Remember, a little goes a long way in a room of this size and because volume is scaled down, so are costs.

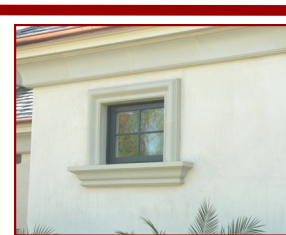

Before settling on your final plans, don't forget about the floor. A handful of dark shiny mosaics scattered across a floor of creamy limestone can be impressive. Consider a border of inexpensive field tile filled with a mosaic herringbone or basket weave pattern. Normally preset on netted sheets, mosaics are fairly easy to install. Try getting fancy by cutting the sheets into strips to be used as borders or smaller squares to be used as inserts. Small custom medallions can also add an elegant touch for a modest investment.

Many people are afraid of using mosaic tiles in their homes. This is sad because these tiles can be used to add color and texture to the decor of almost any room in the house. The possibilities they offer are almost endless. Used correctly, they can cause a space to immediately feel either more relaxing or more vibrant.

The key to using mosaic tiles in your home is to choose the right size and color of tiles for the space that you are decorating. Think carefully about these two aspects of the tiles as well as to what the overall purpose of the room is intended to be and you should find that using mosaic tiles in the design of your home is relatively simple.

Mostly, though, just have fun with it. Mosaic tiles are relatively easy to install and they can really change a space so don't hesitate to play around a little bit to get the feel that you want to have when altering your rooms in this way.

The shower is the perfect place to start playing around with mosaic tiles because it's so hard to go wrong in this part of the home. Tiles add a natural feeling to the shower, as though you are out bathing in the nature of a waterfall surrounded by stones. Choose natural colors accordingly. Here we see that the addition of some natural soaps and some great shower curtains can really enhance the feeling of nature that you get when enjoying a shower in this bathroom.

This is another example of how mosaic tiles can be used in a bathroom to evoke the feeling that you are in the midst of nature. In this case, the bolder green coloring makes the tile really stand out and the feeling is more like being in a jungle environment. Exotic plants enhance that feeling. If you want a bathroom that really wakes you up and makes you feel as though the sun is shining right on you, tiles like these would do the trick.

The kitchen is another great space for adding mosaic tiles to enhance the decor of the room. Here, the tiles are also functional, since they serve as a backsplash for the kitchen sink. The tiles that you choose will determine how much they stand out in the room. In this case, the combination of muted colors along with the small size of the tiles makes them look artful without necessarily standing out.

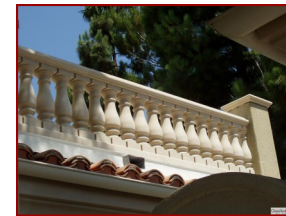

Here we can see how a different choice in the color and size of tiles can really make a room look different. In comparison to the kitchen above, this one has mosaic tile walls that are really set apart from the rest of the cabinetry in the kitchen. Instead of blending in, these mosaic tiles stand out. If you want a kitchen that is modern and expressive, larger tiles that are set in a way that creates a textural pattern on the wall could be one way to go with your design. Most of the tiles that there are to choose from are square or rectangular but those aren't the only choices that you have. Choose tiles that are of a different shape and you can create cool patterns and designs in your home without a lot of hard work on your part. When making this choice, always go small with the tiles because it creates a look that blends together well without attacking the senses.
